THANKS GIVEN

For the Good Cheer Bags Sent By Naval League.

The following letter has been received by Miss Martha Ellis Soyars in reply to a box containing 46 Good-Cheer Christmas bags, which were sent a short time ago to the National Headquarters in Washington:

The committee in charge of the Good Cheer Fund, Woman's Naval Service, Inc., thanks you for your contribution, which arrived safely today. It is such generous support of this endeavor to send Christmas to the men on the fighting ships and in the trenches of France that is making it so successful.

The time for receiving good cheer bags and contributions for the fund has been extended to November 10. Therefore, if any new friends are interested, please instruct them to send bags and gifts as before to 1696 20th st., N. W., Washington, D. C., on or before that date.

With renewed thanks in the name of our country's defenders,

Truly yours,

ELISABETH E. POE.

Secretary General.

These bags, made by the patriotic High School girls, were filled with the most attractive and acceptable gifts for the soldiers fighting in France and were complete in every detail. Each bag contained ten articles for use and pleasure, including such things as tobacco, pipes, stationery, Bibles, candies, chewing gum, bouillon cups, pocket knives, playing cards, tooth brushes, pocket editions of entertaining fiction and similar articles.

HEAD OF L. & N. MUST ANSWER

Milton H. Smith To Tell of Political Activities—Supreme Court Defines Powers the L. C.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The Supreme Court held that the Interstate Commerce Commission has practically unlimited powers to investigate the activities and expenditures of railroads.

The decision was rendered in the case of President Milton H. Smith and other officers of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, who contested the commission's authority to require them to answer questions regarding that company's political activities and contributions. The court decided that a carrier has the right to mould or enlighten public opinion, but that its conduct is open to inquiry.

The opinion is the first definition of the wide powers conferred on the commission by Congress in 1910, which the railroads have always denied. It declares flatly that the investigating and supervising powers of the commission extend to all sums expended by them "which could effect in any way their benefit or burden as agents of the public."

Roads Rule.

Roads rule the world—not kings nor conquerors, not courts nor con tables, not ships nor soldiers. The road is the only royal line in a democracy, the only legislature that never changes, the court that never sleeps, the only army that never quits, the first aid to redemption of any nation, the exodus from stagnation in any society, the call from savagery in any tribe, the high priest of prosperity after the order of Malchisedek without the beginning of days or end of life.—The road is umpire in every war, and when the new map is made it simply pushes on its great campaign of help, hope, brotherhood, efficiency and peace.—Author Unknown.

Bloody Massacres.

A story of cold-blooded massacres by Germans of crews of British North Sea convoys in a recent battle is told by Norwegian newspapers. Ships were hurled thick and fast on the helpless ships and lifeboats also were shelled.

Old Firm To Retire.

The old dry goods and notions firm of J. M. Robinson, Norton & Co., of Louisville, founded in 1844 and one of the best-known concerns of its kind in the South, is preparing to go into voluntary liquidation, according to well-authenticated reports along Main street.

MARRIAGES

Hill-Duer.

Mr. James D. Hill, of this city, and Mrs. Ella Duer, of Logan county, were married Monday at 1 o'clock p. m. Rev. J. W. Stiles, of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. Mr. Hill, accompanied by the minister, left here Monday morning, making the trip through in an auto. After the marriage, which occurred at the home of Mrs. Jasper Duer, daughter-in-law of the bride, near Adairville, the couple, accompanied by Dr. Stiles, returned to this city, reaching here about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The acquaintance of the couple dates back to their childhood days. Later in life, both married and reared families. Mr. Duer died about twenty years ago and Mrs. Hill passed away some time ago. In June last, Mr. Hill and his schoolmate of boyhood days met again in Logan, while he was on a visit to friends in that county. This visit was followed by another in about two months and the marriage is the happy culmination of this renewed acquaintance.

Whitaker-Jenkins.

A marriage license was issued Monday to Vernon Whitaker, son of C. D. Whitaker, and Miss Vera Jenkins, daughter of John Jenkins.

New Poisonous Gas 100 Times More Deadly.

Amsterdam, Nov. 26.—According to the correspondent at Gorizia of the Budapest newspaper, Pesti-Hirlap, the Australians made their attack upon Gorizia, with a new poisonous gas, the invention of a Viennese professor.

The rain which fell during the attack, it is explained, kept the fumes close to the ground and rendered the Italian masks useless against the new invention which the correspondent declares, is one hundred times stronger and more deadly than the gas used in former attacks on the same front.

Need for Haste.

Roland's sister had been presented with a brand-new maitress kitten. Everything went well until he came stamping into the house after school and scared the kitten and it ran under the couch. After trying to coax her out, without avail, he asked its name. "Sister hasn't named her kitten yet," his mother informed him, and he replied, "Well, let's hurry up and name her, then, so I can call her out from beneath that couch."

WAR TALKS

By UNCLE DAN

Number Four

Military Training Necessary for Safety and Defense.

"Say, Uncle Dan," said Billie, "Jimmie and I have been looking up about war in the encyclopedia at school. We found that in the war between Germany and France in 1870-71, Germany lost in killed and wounded 23,000 soldiers while France lost about six times as many, and besides that, she lost every battle. We asked Professor Slocum why this was. He said that the German army was highly trained and ably commanded, while the French soldiers were poorly trained; and that their war department was bony-combed with jealousy and politics; that the officers were not much good, and that's why France lost the war and so many men. What do you think about it, Uncle Dan?"

"Well," said Uncle Dan, "Professor Slocum is right. By inefficiency France lost that war, together with two of her best provinces—Alsace and Lorraine—and had to pay a billion dollars indemnity money. France today learned her lesson by that sad experience, so she put in universal military training, and as a result, her soldiers now know how to fight and how to protect themselves. They are losing less men in the war than the Germans. France also put politics out of her war department, so that expert authority, instead of bureaucratic stupidity, now directs the army. The result is, France has one of the best and most efficient armies ever assembled, and this shows what thorough training and good leadership means in warfare. This saved France in this crisis, as well as the liberties of the world."

"As war is now conducted, there is no place for an untrained man. A body of 10,000 well trained soldiers properly handled could defeat five times their number of raw recruits and do it every time with comparatively small loss to themselves. Proper training alone will reduce the death and casualty rate one-third of what it otherwise would be, and right here is an unanswerable argument for universal military training."

"Our government has no moral right to force her men into war service without properly training them for it. To do so is simply murder, hence the frantic effort that is now being made to give her soldiers some training before they are sent to the front. If we are to win this war, it will take trained men to do it, and it will take trained men to win any other war that may come upon us in the future. If we must fight, let us fight to win and not to lose."

"That's the stuff," said Billie. Continuing, Uncle Dan said: "Our government has expended about $300,000,000 to put up cantonments and training stations in order to train the men called by the selective draft. When these men are trained the training stations should be immediately filled with younger men, say those in their nineteenth year, to receive six months of intensive military training along the lines of the Chamberlain bill. This will be of immeasurable benefit to them individually. It will do them more good than any other two years of their whole life; it will make them strong, manly, self-reliant, quick to see and quick to act; it will equip them for a successful life. In short, it will rebuild American manhood and will also give the government a body of trained men to draw from in case it is necessary to defend our flag and country. We must settle this question of universal military training immediately, otherwise these training camps may be demolished. The adoption of universal military training will be notice to the world that from then on we will be prepared to defend ourselves promptly and efficiently, and this will do more to keep us out of war in the future than anything else we could do."

"Do you think, brother," said Mrs. Graham, "that there will ever be another war?"

"I have no doubt about it," said Uncle Dan. "So long as men are selfish, so long as nations are ambitious to acquire territory, so long as population presses and demands more room, so long as there remains a scramble for world trade—so long wars will be. When the time comes that we reach the high plane for which we hope and dream, when all will recognize the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, then, and then only, will wars cease. When that day comes doors will need no locks, banks will need no vaults to protect their treasures, but that day is a long way off."

"The only safe and sane plan is to be able to defend ourselves at all times. Therefore, every citizen should insist that senators and congressmen shall provide for universal military training, so that never again shall the country be caught so completely unready as this war found us. Fortunately, in this case, our enemy has been held back, so we have had a few months in which to prepare. This advantage probably will never come again. It is however our salvation today."

"Because she was ready, Switzerland is an island of peace in a sea of war. Safety first is good, but safety always is better. In strength there is safety. You never saw a tin can tied to the tail of a building. There is a reason."

EARLY LOTTERIES IN KY. REVIEWED

Miss Martha Stephenson Reads Interesting Paper Before Filson Club.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Filson Club at the Louisville Free Public Library, Miss Martha Stephenson, of Harrodsburg, read the paper of the evening, "Early Lotteries in Kentucky."

According to Miss Stephenson, lotteries were first instituted in the State in 1792, when two were authorized by the assembly to raise $500 each for the benefit of the Lexington Dutch Presbyterian church and Salem Academy at Bardonia. She explained that in the early days the lotteries were granted by the Legislature to raise funds for the building of schools, churches, roads, river improvements and other public utilities.

In 1816, a number of private lotteries made their appearance, and the Legislature was compelled to pass an act adverse to their establishment. From that time lottery privileges were so abused and fell into such disrepute that in 1852 the Supreme Court of Kentucky declared the practice illegal. It was not until 1891 that the Supreme Court of the United States upheld this decision.—Times.

Clue to Man's Nationality.

One can generally tell a man's nationality from the manner in which he carries his pocket money, for the various methods employed frequently betray the name of the country of which they are typical. The majority of Englishmen carry all their money—be it gold, silver or copper—all mixed up in the right-hand trousers pocket. Frenchmen, more often than not, are satisfied with an ordinary leather purse in carrying money. The poorer classes of the Italians tie up their small fortune in a gaudily-colored handkerchief. Many Russians prefer to hide their savings in their boots or the lining of their clothes.

Speed on the Piano.

When a well-known pianist was playing a presto by Mendelssohn a man who was present set himself to counting the notes and the time occupied. She played 5,395 notes in four minutes and three seconds. Everyone of those notes involved three movements of a finger, elbow or arm. At twenty-four notes per second that amounted to seventy-two movements a second.

Prevents a Double Exposure.

A prolific source of failure in amateur photography can be laid to not turning the film after an exposure has been made, with the result that two images are impressed on the same film surface, says the Scientific American. Even the most thoughtful person is apt to forget to turn the film, and at times invaluable pictures are thus ruined. With a view to eliminating all possibility of double exposure, Clarence A. Hoyt of Tacoma, Wash., has invented an ingenious little device which prevents a picture from being snapped until the film has been turned. When adapted to the box type of camera a catch locks with the shutter release lever after an exposure is made, and in order to unlock the lever it is necessary first to turn the film. It is also possible to make the device indicate whether the film surface in position has been exposed or not by means of a window in which appears the word "Exposed" or "Unexposed," as the case may be.

The Easiest Way.

"She determined to be boss of the house, but he was pretty strong-willed himself." "How'd she manage it?" "Became his cook instead of his wife."
